This week I am extremely excited about a new cooking technique called sous vide. In sous vide cooking, you submerge the food (usually vacuum-sealed in plastic) into a water bath that is precisely set to the target temperature you want the food to be cooked to. In his book, Cooking for Geeks, Jeff Potter describes it as "ultra-low-temperature poaching."

Next month, we will be serving Sous Vide Salmon with Dill Hollandaise. To reserve a seat at the chef table, contact us before November 30.

Baker's Corner, Seekonk, MA

Instructions

1. Start by adding the `DOCTYPE` declaration to tell browsers this is an HTML5 document.
2. Add all the document structure elements first (html, head, meta, title, and body). Give the document the title "The Black Goose Bistro News."
3. The first thing we'll do is identify the top-level heading and the list of links as the `header` for the document by wrapping them in a `header` element (don't forget the closing tag). Within the `header`, the headline should be an `h1` and the list of links should be an unordered list (`ul`). Give the list more meaning by identifying it as the primary navigation for the site (`nav`).

Capture1.PNG

- The News page has two posts titled “Summer Menu Items” and “Low and Slow.” Mark up each one as an `article`.

Capture2.PNG

Capture3.PNG

- Now we'll get the first article into shape. Let's create a header for this article that contains the heading (`h2` this time because we've moved down in the document hierarchy) and the publication information (`p`). Identify the publication date for the article with the `time` element.

Capture4.PNG

- The content after the header is a simple paragraph. However, the menu has some interesting things going on. It is divided into two conceptual sections (Appetizers and Main Courses), so mark those up as `section` elements. Be careful that the final closing section tag (`</section>`) appears before the closing article tag (`</article>`) so the elements are nested correctly and don't overlap. Finally, let's identify the sections with `id` attributes. Name the first one "appetizers" and the second "maincourses".

Capture5.PNG

Capture6.PNG

- With our sections in place, now we can mark up the content. We're down to `h3` for the headings in each section. Choose the most appropriate list elements to describe the menu item names and their descriptions. Mark up the lists and each item within the lists.

Capture7.PNG

Capture8.PNG

8. Now we can add a few fine details. Classify each price as “price” using span elements.

Capture9.PNG

9. Two of the dishes are new items. Change the double hyphens to an em dash character and mark up “new item!” as “strongly important.” Classify the title of each new dish as “newitem” (use the existing dt element; there is no need to add a span this time). This allows us to target menu titles with the “newitem” class and style them differently than other menu items.

<section id="appetizers">
  <h3>Appetizers</h3>
  <dl>
    <dt>Black bean purses</dt>
    <dd>Spicy black bean and a blend of Mexican cheeses wrapped in sheets of phyl-lo and baked until golden. $3.95
    <dt class="newitem">Southwestern napoleons with lump crab &#8212; new item!</dt>
    <dd>Layers of light lump crab meat, bean and corn salsa, and our handmade flour tortillas. $7.95</dd>
  </dl>
</section>

Capture10.PNG

10. That takes care of the first article. The second article is already mostly marked up by default, but you should mark up the header with the appropriate heading and publication date information.

<article>
  <header>
    <h2>Low and Slow</h2>
    posted by BGB, <time datetime="2016-11-15">November 15, 2016</time>

11. Now make the remaining content that applies to the whole page a footer. Mark each line of content within the footer as a paragraph.

Capture12.PNG

12. Give the location and hours information some context by putting them in a div named "about." Make the labels "Location" and "Hours" appear on a line by themselves by adding line breaks (br) after them. Mark up the hours with the time element (you don't need the date or time zone portions).

Capture13.PNG

13. Finally, copyright information is typically "small print" on a document, so mark it up accordingly. As the final touch, add a copyright symbol after the word “copyright” using the keyboard or the `©` ; character entity.
